

Group Play Using Child-centered Play Therapy Principles and Skills

By Ms Lau Suet Ha, Lottie

ABOUT THE PROGRAM

This program is a continuation of the series of training courses on Child-centered Play Therapy with individual children, as conducted by Ms Lottie Lau and organized by the Department of Social Work of CUHK.

Helping professionals working with children using child-centered play therapy may sometimes need to place one or two more children in therapy sessions and conduct group play therapy. Such a therapy modality would be especially helpful in treating children's difficulties mainly related to socialization rather than personal ones (Axline, 1969; Ginott, 1961; Landreth, 2001). When conducting child-centered group play therapy, the therapist needs to acquire principles and skills facilitative of children's self-expressions not only on an individual level but in a relationship context as well. These principles and skills used in group play therapy, apart from having therapeutic value for children in a group process, can be adopted to facilitate children's daily interactions and even enhance child-parent relationships. (Information provided by Lottie Lau.)

OBJECTIVE & CONTENT

This is a 21-hour training course that aims to prepare helping professionals to conduct child-centered group play therapy. Major theoretical concepts of the therapy, including its rationale, beliefs, and goals will be explored. Practical issues, such as principles of case selection, considerations of group arrangements, and possible group dynamics will be discussed. And, therapeutic responses facilitating children's self-expressions in a relationship context, including interactions among children in the therapy process and those in between child and parent will be addressed.

TRAINER

Ms Lottie LAU is one of the pioneers who introduces and cultivates the approach of Child-centered Play Therapy in Hong Kong. After receiving her Bachelor social work degree from the Chinese University of Hong Kong, Ms LAU pursued her postgraduate counseling study in The University of North Texas, where she specialized in learning Child-centered Play Therapy from Dr Garry Landreth, an internationally renowned scholar who developed the therapy based on Virginia Axline's nondirective approach.

Throughout her 27 years of clinical experience in counseling work, Ms LAU is particularly keen with working with emotionally disturbed children and steering psychological healing in them by means of child-centered play therapy. In addition to her formal teaching in tertiary education, Ms LAU began to extend her professional career to pioneering systematic training programs on Child-centered Play Therapy in Hong Kong in the 1990s. Over the years, she has laid down the cornerstone of the therapy in the local scene by conducting hundreds of related training programs with continual up-to-date refinement. Accumulatively, Ms LAU has delivered her basic training courses to more than 6000 helping professionals and parents. She has received numerous positive comments and her courses have always been fully enrolled with unreserved recommendations from participants.
